（　5　）

【例文】

1. It ended in the doctor being sent for.

2. I had a new coat made.

3. I had my hat blown off.

4. I had no money left in my pocket.

5. I had it written before he came.

he　who・・・(=the one　who・・・; anyone　who・・・)

【語義】

solve　（問題）を解く　語源はラテン語loosen（ほどく）　　solution（名）解決、soluble（形）…に溶けやすい(in…)

rash [人が]向こう見ずな、軽率な

【例題】

　　　　　The world is full of unsolved problems--which give it part of its charm and interest, and there is no prospect of the supply running short. Some of these unsolved problems are scientific, and he is rash indeed who will call any of them insoluble. Many of the insoluble problems of our forefathers have their solutions stated in our text-books, and Science is still very young. Moreover, some of the very difficult unsolved problems are already being nibbled at by scientific methods, which in itself is hopeful.